Colleagues,

I understand that a review, that you have support with, has been undertaken with the AG's office in relation to staff who undertake roles in the judiciary, including those who sit on employment and other tribunals. In particular assessment of implications for double payment from the public purse and NICS Code of conduct which state that a portion of annual leave may be used to undertake a secondary role.

Obviously we need to ensure a consistency of approach across the service so I would be grateful for join advice on any implications of above and any recommendations arising for consideration.

Kind regards

Jayne
